Daddy's Bedtime Story

Fairy, Gold

He Awoke With a Start

"O NCE upon a time," said daddy, "there was a poor man who had to work late at night to earn enough money to support himself and his family. He lived a short distance away from the village in which he worked, and the road led past a wood. One night he had to remain longer than usual at his work, and he was very tired when he left his workbench and started home. He stopped to rest and fell asleep at the foot of a tree.

"Now, it happened that in the wood there lived a band of fairies who were very rich. One of them on her way home saw the poor man asleep at the foot of the tree and told her companions about him. One of them said: 'Let us give the poor man some of our money. He looks as though he needed it.'

"So all the fairies commenced carrying bags of gold to the man's feet. When they had quite a pile there they all hid behind trees while one fairy, bolder than the rest, climbed on the log on which the man rested and blew her trumpet into his ear. He awoke with a start, and the fairy ran off before he saw her. But he did not fail to see the bags of money at his feet. He picked them all up and went on his way happy. When he reached home he told his wife that he would not have to work any more; that he was rich.

"Now, the money which the fairies had left for the man was fairy gold, which is very peculiar. It can be spent for good uses only. If any one attempts to spend it for a bad purpose it turns to lead in his hands and is worthless, of course.

"For a long time this man did good with his money. He was kind to his wife and his children and gave to the poor of his town. People tried often to learn where he had obtained the money, but he and his wife were wise, and they would not tell, for they were afraid that if they told the other folks would go to the woods and pester the fairies, and then the fairies would take away their gift.

"But after awhile the man became greedy. He said to himself: 'The fairies gave the money to me and not to my wife and children or the poor of this town. I shall spend it all on myself.' So he said to his wife and his children: 'You must go to work. You shall not have any more of my money. I shall spend it all on myself.'

"You may imagine how surprised he was when he tried to buy things for himself only with the fairy money. When he gave the clerk one of his pieces of money the clerk would say: 'Why, this money is not good. It is only lead. So in a short time the man found that only when he did good with his money did it remain gold, and he became again a very good man.'

MIKADO PLANS SOUTH SEA COLONIES

Sydney (Australia) — No little uneasiness is manifesting itself in Australian circles over the activity of the Japanese in colonizing the island of New Caledonia, which lies nine hundred miles almost due east from Sydney. There are to-day two thousand Japanese on the island, this number having been imported from Japan by the Society le Nickel, which is the name of the company owned by the Rothschilds, which is developing the immense deposit of nickel in New Caledonia. The society has further engaged 2,300 more Japanese to work in its mines.

New Caledonia, it is pointed out, would make an excellent naval base for Japan. The island has a magnificent harbor, it has immense deposits of coal and is enormously wealthy in other minerals.

It is estimated that the Japanese on the island to-day could take possession of it to-morrow if they chose. Island Unprotected.

There are less than three hundred soldiers on the island, and not a single piece of artillery. The harbor, Noumea, is entirely unprotected.

While the island nominally belongs to France, France has for years maintained only a nominal control.

The "Daily Sun" of Sydney has made a careful investigation of conditions in New Caledonia. It sent a special representative to the island, and his report is somewhat startling to the people of Australia.

The representative of the "Daily Sun" discovered that the Japanese on the island are not coolies, but that the larger proportion of them are skilled workmen. Many of them are engineers, some are bridge builders, some are masons, and others represent many other trades.

Nearly all of them fought in the Russo-Japanese war. They walk about after work wearing the military cloaks which they wore in the war with Russia. Many of them make no concealment of the fact that they are armed with heavy revolvers.

Japanese Gather Data.

It has been discovered that parties of Japanese, under guise of fishermen, have taken soundings of the channels leading to the harbor; that they have charted all the islands and shoals off the harbor, and it is even believed they have imported the necessary mechanical appliances for the establishment of a wireless telegraph station.

The "Daily Sun," after presenting these facts gathered by its special representative, sounds a warning to Australia. It appears that the Japanese are planning to make New Caledonia, if not a dependency of the flag of the rising sun, at least a way station close to the Australian shores from which Japanese laborers can find their way into Australia in large numbers.

There are also indications that the Japanese have their eye on the Loyalty Islands, to which they have emigrated in considerable numbers. They have already installed a wireless station there, according to advices from Victoria.

Asks for Protectorate.

The Loyalty Islands are quasi-independent, ruled by a white man named W. J. Williams. He has addressed petitions both to Great Britain and to French officials asking that a protectorate be declared over the islands to prevent them from being taken by Japan. He says he fears the Japanese are preparing a base from which they could attack Australia if ever the occasion arose.

MONSARRAT HELPS COUNTY

Although District Magistrate Monsarrat held a short session this morning in Police Court, he collected for the county $140, bail money which he ordered forfeited. His decision was a timely help to the county.

During the quiet hours last night the police jumped upon fourteen Japanese gamblers, who were busily playing paikau and other Oriental games. They were arrested and taken to the police station, where they each put up bail of $10 for release. When their names were called this morning by Officer Wood, they were not present in court. At the suggestion of Prosecuting Attorney Milvorton, who appeared in the absence of A. M. Brown, Judge Monsarrat ordered the bail money forfeited.

The other defendants in court were dealt with according to the circumstances in their cases.
